PREAMBLE AND ABSTRACT
OF THE
CONSTITUTION
OF THE
EQUITABLE UNION.

PREAMBLE.

BELIEVING that secret societies, as they exist in this College, tend directly to create distinctions entirely factitious, and anti-republican; to produce endless strife and divisions; thereby destroying the harmony and interrupting the prosperity of the Institution: we feel it our duty, as well as our mutual interest, to use our best endeavors to counteract their blighting influence.

In doing this, we but reiterate the cardinal principle of '76—equality of rights and privileges. We recognize no superiority but that of merit; no distinctions but those of nature's making; no dominion but that of virtue and reason.

We, therefore, members of Union College—having in view these great principles—do form ourselves into a society for the purpose of more effectually counteracting the injurious influence of secret combinations; diffusing and promoting liberal sentiments, and “advancing the great objects of social and literary improvement.”

ABSTRACT.

The Society is organized under a President, Vice President, a Corresponding Secretary, Recording Secretary, and Treasurer.

Any member of College, who neither belongs to, nor countenances secret societies, may be admitted into the Equitable Union.

Any member joining a secret society, is expelled on conviction of the same.

The meetings of the society are held regularly, once in two weeks.

The exercises are strictly literary; consisting chiefly in Orations, Composition and Debate.

Members are bound, by their honor as gentlemen, to attend all meetings of the society, and perform the duties assigned them.

Each candidate for admission, solemnly affirms, at his initiation, that he is not, nor intends ever to become, a member of a secret society.
